BACK STAGE

by bill doll

Milton Stiefel's newest leading lady makes her first Connecticut appearance this week. Just a few years ago Mitzi Green was Hollywood's favorite child star.

. . . Sarah Sherbourne played the ballet dancer in "You Can't Take It With You" at Ivoryton last season. You'll see her in a different sort of role at this performance . . . Zolya Talma will be remembered as the Queen in "The Queen's Husband," which opened the Playhouse season three years ago . . . Ross Elliott, our new stage manager, is a graduate of Orson Welles Mercury Theatre . . . If you want to know what happened to Will Henry, you can find him lecturing at the Ford Exhibit at the World's Fair . . . Coburn Goodwin had a busy season. He just returned from a long road tour with a hit comedy, and spent the early Fall a show headed by Gypsy Rose Lee . . . Percy Helton worked under the Sam Harris management this winter in "Fabulous Invalid," and later starred in the revival of "Naughty Naught." Two of Ivoryton's prime favorites will return for next week's attraction. They are Seth Arnold and Joseph Pevnye who will be starred in "The Gentle People." This is the hit play which only recently closed on Broadway. You'll see it here exactly as staged by the Group Theatre for its original production . . . Don't forget about our regular matinee every Friday at 2:40.
